DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to applicant's amendment received on 12/19/2007.

The examiner acknowledges the amendments made to the claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claims 1, 3-8, 48, and 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cummins (U.S. Patent No. 7,008,435).

Claims 1, 3-4, 48, 50: Cummins discloses an individual staple 10 having a proximal end adapted for individual attachment to a single-staple delivery device, the staple having a plurality of distally extending prongs commonly connected to the proximal end at a crown and having tissue-piercing distal tips with sufficient stiffness to pierce tissue solely in response to a distal force applied at the proximal end, and a pledget 12 being pre-attached to the staple (before the staple engages tissue) and being embraced by the prongs, the pledget having preformed edges or peripheral notches 16 configured to be frictionally engaged by and between the prongs to capture and retain the pledget on the staple and to enable the combined staple and attached pledget to be advanced together by a single-staple delivery device, whereby when the prongs of the staple are engaged with tissue, the pledget will be disposed and retained (Figures 1-6). The pledget may have a plurality of peripherally extending tabs configured to be received between said plurality of prongs (tabs on either side of edges or slots 16 in Figure 1) or a plurality of holes, each receiving one of said plurality of prongs (col. 4, lines 51-55).

Claims 5-8: Cummins discloses the pledget comprising a bioabsorbable woven or non-woven fabric material, and a polyester or polymer sheet (col. 3, lines 41-44).

3. Claims 9-17 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cummins (U.S. Patent No. 7,008,435) in view of Dalessandro (U.S. Patent No. 6,273,897).

Claims 5-17: Cummins discloses the claimed device except for the pledget having a physiologically active agent adapted to be released over a predetermined time interval or comprising a coating or being impregnated in the pledget, or being an anti-microbial/antiseptic agent, or being an agent that inhibits intraluminal clotting or promotes extraluminal clotting.

Dalessandro teaches a bioabsorbable pledget (or “buttress”) 52 containing physiologically active agents that are released over a predetermined time interval, anti-microbial or anti-septic agents, agents that inhibit intraluminal clotting or promote extraluminal clotting, or agents that comprise a coating or are impregnated in said pledget (Figures 4-6, col. 5, lines 24 to col. 7, line 55). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to provide a pledget comprising the above materials and agents, as taught by Dalessandro, to Cummins since they are well known in the art for their biocompatibility and other benefits that promote healing.

4. Claim 49 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cummins (U.S. Patent No. 7,008,435) in view of Ginn (U.S. Patent No. 6,277,140).

Claim 49: Cummins discloses the claimed device, except for the crown including distally extending tabs or webs adapted to bear against the pledget.

Ginn teaches a staple 62 having four prongs 76 and being commonly connected at a crown 70 including distally extending tabs or webs (near 74) adapted to bear against a pledget (Figure 28). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to provide the distally extending tabs or webs, as taught by Ginn, to Cummins in order to create a secure engagement between the pledget and the staple.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 3-17, and 48-50 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion
